After The Night By Linda Howard

FAITH DEVLIN: A poor, outcast child in Prescott, Louisiana, she'd always adored the town's golden boy from afar. But he called her white trash that sultry Southern night when his rich, respected father disappeared, along with her pretty Mom. Now Faith wanted to hate Gray Rouillard...not to feel a powerful surge of desire. But she couldn't quench her passion, any more than she could hide the truth about the past she had waited so long to unravel.

GRAY ROUILLARD: Even when he raised hell, he did it with style. Reckless, charming, and backed by Rouillard money, Gray controlled the town of Prescott -- and Devlin was a name he never wanted to hear again. But when he gazed at Faith Devlin, all he saw was a swirl of tangled sheets and her silken flesh beneath him. To care for her was impossible, unthinkable...because Gray Rouillard planned to use all his power to ruin her.

Editorial Review

Amazon.com Review

Faith Devlin grew up knowing that Gray Rouillard thought she was trash because his rich father ran away with her pretty, sexy mother. She almost hates him for it, but she can't, because every time he looks at her she wants him more. Gray controls the tiny Louisiana town, but he finds can't control Faith -- until he gets close to her. And underneath the passion, there's a mystery to be solved. Steamy and compelling!

From Publishers Weekly

Flawed and predictable, Howard's latest offering after Dream Man is the rather cliched contemporary story of a dirt-poor Southern girl in love with the handsome son of a Louisiana town's wealthiest family. Loving Rouillard men seems to run in the Devlin family. Twelve years ago, Renee Devlin and Guy Rouillard disappeared simultaneously one summer night. The entire town assumed the longtime lovers had eloped, and Guy's handsome young son, Gray, enraged, had the remaining Devlins driven out of town, leaving 14-year-old Faith to care for her fatally ill baby brother. Now Faith is back, financially independent and still nursing a passion for Gray that his actions couldn't possibly justify. But she's also ready to even the score?especially when she learns that the elder Rouillard may have been murdered that fateful summer night. Faith is not as sympathetic as Howard's previous heroines, and Gray goes a half-step beyond the acceptable bad-boy hero. Howard does manage to offset these problems with provocative secondary characters and borderline erotica, creating a sexy speed read.

Review

Ever since she was a young girl, on the edge of puberty, Faith Devlin has worshiped stunning, sophisticated Gray Rouillard. They couldn't be more different. Gray's father practically owns Prescott, in her girlish dreams, Gray is a knight in shining armor. Until the night he throws Faith and her dirt-poor family out into the streets. It seems Gray's father, a notorious womanizer has finally gone over the edge. He's left his family, disappearing into the night with one of his paramours: Faith's no good mother. When Gray learns that his father's deceit has almost cost his sister her life, he takes out his rage on Faith's motherless family, evicting them from Rouillard land in the middle of the night. In the years since her family was driven from town, Faith has climbed the ladder to success. And now it's time to come home. Home to find out what really happened the night her mother disappeared with Gray Rouillard's father. Once he learns she's back in Prescott, Gray does everything in his power to drive her out of town again. Not only is Faith a hated Devlin, but she's the spitting image of her whore of a mother. The woman who stole his father and drove his young sister to the brink of suicide. But neither Gray nor Faith realized that the attraction Faith carried for Gray, the attraction she was sure had died that night so many years ago, would bloom into a wild, passionate yearning. Much as he hates her family, Gray can't help but care about Faith. And when someone in town starts threatening her, Gray finds himself wanting to protect her. As Faith and Gray struggle to overcome the past, someone in Prescott plans to see that they never unravel the mystery. Powerful characters, a powerful setting, and an intriguing mystery. After the Night has it all! Linda Howard weaves a spell as dark as a moon less night in the bayous! Intense romance and mounting tension will keep you up late to finish this one!Annette Carney -- Copyright © 1994-97 Literary Times, Inc. All rights reserved -- From Literary Times
